GERMAN RAIDER IN SOUTH ATLANTIC

Unconfirmed Report of Loss of 400 Lives on English Ship Sunk Without Warning—Nameless Black Raider Said to Have Sunk 21 Ships—Survivors Landed at Pernambuco.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Rio Janeiro, Jan. 17.—Dispatches received here today bore the unconfirmed reports that a German raider had sunk 21 merchant ships in the South Atlantic and is still at large. Another report was that seven ships had been sunk and nine captured.

The raider sunk an English ship, it was said, without warning causing the loss of 400 lives.

Survivors of ships destroyed by the German raider are reported to have been landed at Pernambuco by a Japanese ship.

Among the ships reported sunk is the Voltair, of the Brazilian coast, but this statement is doubted owing to the fact that the Voltair was bound from England to New York, and was in Halifax, when she disappeared and there was no reason for her not to be near the South American coast.

The raider, it was said by survivors of the victims, bore no name and was painted black. She is armed with twelve cannon and four torpedo tubes it was said.

Among the overdue ships which may have fallen victim to the raider are the steamships Dragnet, Badonshire, Amara, Drina, Orrega, Hammeishus, Newportland, Noutant, Sempel, San Giorgio, Nessel, King George, Yanondale, St. Miodor, Molenethiel, St. Sael, Snowdon, Orange and Gailly.

Some of the survivors were reported to have been on the raider for 28 days before being sent ashore.

The Brazilian minister of marine has undertaken an investigation to determine if the neutrality of the country has been violated, it is reported.

The raider is said to be the Violeta.

There are three ships of the name Violeta listed in Lloyd's Register of ships. Two are German ships and the third Swedish.

London, Jan. 17.—Twelve Allied vessels have fallen prey to a new German raider.

Official announcement was made by the Admiralty today that eight British and two French ships have been sunk and that two other British vessels were captured.

Five crews were placed on the two captured ships and it is likely that they too have been converted into "merchant cruisers" and are now preying upon commerce somewhere upon the high seas.

The Admiralty in announcing the loss of the 12 ships said that nothing was known of the whereabouts of any of the captured ships.

ALLIES TO CLEAR SINAI PENINSULA

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Jan. 17.—A determined effort is being made by the British to clear the Sinai Peninsula of the Turks.

(The Sinai Peninsula is that part of Egypt lying between the Suez Canal and the western boundary of the Ottoman Empire.)

It is believed by British military critics that the capture of the Turkish base at El Arish has put to flight forever the aim of the Turks to attack the British defenses of the Suez Canal and perhaps gain control of that strategic waterway.

Since the capture of El Arish by the British the defenses of the town have been greatly strengthened and military steps are being taken to prevent any possibility of its recapture.

A correspondent who accompanied the troops across the desert says that during the last eight or nine miles from the canal the ground consists of rolling billows of sand with the valleys getting deeper and deeper.

The sun glare was relieved by patches of scrub. After a time a series of rolling hills succeeded each other with little vegetation. These sand dunes have sharp crests and their sides in many instances, are perpendicular. In some of the depressions there are small groves of palm trees.

Despite the fact that the horses' hoofs and the wheels of the guns sank a foot into the hot sand cavalry and artillery were moved across this waterless tract.

El Arish is a typical Oriental town with houses made of sun dried mud bricks. The town has been several times bombarded from the sea but shows few signs of war.

LEAK HEARING IS POSTPONED

Committee Decides to Employ Counsel and Spectators Grown When They Find They Are Not to Listen to Beautiful Blonde.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Jan. 17.—Representative Garrett, on behalf of the peace leak investigation committee, announced today that there would be no hearing today. The announcement was made after an executive session during which it was decided to ask the house for permission to employ counsel to conduct the examination of witnesses.

A groan went up from the audience as Representative Garrett made the announcement.

Representative Garrett requested all witnesses present to remain in the city and be ready to appear before the committee at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

A woman of mystery was to have been the center of the leak investigation today. She drew attention away from J. P. Morgan and the group of New York bankers who rank among the world's kings of finance. This woman is Mrs. Ruth Thompson Visconti. It is she, according to Thomas W. Lawson, who told him that W. W. Price, a White House newspaper correspondent, was involved with Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the president, as "a between" in the leak of the peace note to Wall Street.

According to Lawson, Mrs. Visconti told him Price received $5,000 for his part in the transaction and Tumulty "much more." She will be given a hearing as soon as the committee meets.

Upon her story the future of the investigation depends. Nothing sensational, or even illuminating is expected from Morgan although he is now the world's biggest financier. With him were subpoenaed H. P. Davidson, F. A. Vanderbilt, Arthur Lipper, Sol C. Weiler and J. S. Rache, any one of whose names means prestige and power wherever money rules.

Nothing but denials of all knowledge of any responsibility for the leak has come thus far from the financiers heard by the committee. Nothing but protestations of innocence is expected from the powerful group of interests headed by Morgan who will be given their hearing after the committee has heard Mrs. Visconti.

The whole fabric of Lawson charges, as developed in two days testimony before the committee, depends upon the corroboration of Mrs. Visconti. After being absent from her apartment ever since Lawson, under pressure from the rules committee, repeated her charges against Price and Tumulty, Mrs. Visconti returned as suddenly, quietly, mysteriously as she had disappeared. She made no explanation of her actions, but calmly submitted to the serving of the subpoena.

Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms William E. Small, despite her first evasion of the subpoena served and apparent reluctance to appear before the committee, her return to her home and acceptance of the subpoena last night today, before he will be able to leave the hospital and answer the charges standing against him.

"He does not realize where he is or what has happened," Dr. Elwood R. Kirby, Thaw's personal physician, explained. "His depression is due partly to loss of blood and his general physical condition. It will be several weeks before he comes around. His mind is not showing the improvement we had hoped for."

Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw failed today to issue the promised statement setting forth "the position of the family" in the case.

"I prefer to maintain my silence," was the only explanation Mrs. Thaw offered.

"Mother Carey's Chickens."
Kate Douglas Wiggin, the author, directed the opening performance of the dramatization of "Mother Carey's Chickens" at the Collingwood Opera House, Poughkeepsie, Tuesday night. The production was pronounced a great success by a large audience.

Newburgh Fire to Play.
The Quassack Hall team of Newburgh, which defeated the girls' five of the Kingston high school, champions of the Hudson Valley for 1916, will play a return game in Kingston on Saturday afternoon.

ADMIRAL GEORGE DEWEY

BURGLARS ENTER TURKO RESIDENCE

Sheriff Shultz was notified on Tuesday afternoon that the house of Frank Turko at Stony Hollow had been broken open and several articles stolen. This is the second time that the Turko home has been broken open during the past week but the first time that the matter has been reported to the authorities.

The Turko residence is located near the church in Stony Hollow and has been empty for some time. Mr. Turko had been working for Steve Fisher for a time and coming down to his house once a day to care for his chickens.

On Tuesday he discovered that the house had been broken open and several articles taken but just when the robbery was committed is not known. The value of the articles taken amounted to about $80 or $90. Among the articles which were taken were five watches, four open faced watches and one ladies' hunting case watch. One of the watches taken was marked "Ashokan." Twenty watch cases, four razors of German make were taken, an alarm clock, underclothing and a dozen knives and forks.

From the fact that the house has been twice broken open it would seem that the burglary was committed by local people who do not live far away from the premises. Sheriff Shultz and his assistants from the office made a trip to Stony Hollow on Tuesday afternoon and made an investigation of the premises and further developments are expected within a short time. A search was made for the missing articles but none of them were located. However, important clues were obtained and the guilty parties will probably be brought before the bar of justice before long.

Lawson told the committee "there was something sad, pathetic and awful about this thing," which he was sure would appear in all of its paths when Mrs. Visconti appeared before the committee.

On the witness stand under the grillage of committee members, Lawson said, referring to Mrs. Visconti's charges against Price and Tumulty, "I was particularly insistent and said very frankly to her that it looked as though there might be some ulterior motive. I asked her right out if she had any such motive and she assured me that there was no such motive, but that she thought she had information that congress and the people should know."

Mrs. Visconti is a blonde and good looking—apparently 28 or 30 years old.

GERMAN RAIDER MAY BE MOLDAVIA

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Jan. 17.—Little doubt existed in shipping circles today that the big trans-Atlantic freighters, long overdue at their various ports, have fallen victim to the phantom-like German raider now positively known to be lurking in the steamer lanes. (How many other vessels have been taken up by the raider is a matter of conjecture.)

Ever since December 9, British war vessels have been sending out warnings of a German raider. The presence of the outlaw was not confirmed on this side, however, until the arrival here of the Belgian steamer Samland, which reported that she was held up off the Irish coast on December 4. The Samland was laden with food for Belgium, and flying the Belgian flag, but the captain of the raider nevertheless allowed her to proceed.

Two German officers, who boarded the Samland, told the captain that the raider was the Moldavia. The ship was listed in shipping records as the British P. and O. liner of that name, whose whereabouts have been a mystery for a year. The Moldavia is a vessel of 5,500 tons and formerly plied the Mediterranean waters.

The four steamers considered certain victims of the Moldavia are the White Star George, the Lamport and Holt, the Voltaire, the Belgavia and the Bellerophon. All are British vessels. The Norwegian steamer Hallborg, which left New York on November 23 for Bordeaux and has not been heard of since also is believed to have been taken.

Chicago Janitors Out on Strike.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Chicago, Jan. 17.—Police anticipated trouble today between 300 apartment house janitors who walked out last night and strike breakers.

Rejecting arbitration of their demands for a 15 per cent wage increase, the strikers quit their jobs and took up picket duty to prevent substitutes from supplanting them.

Officials of the Janitors' Union said today that out of a claimed membership of 6,000, only 300 had failed to get their demands from apartment house owners. Representatives of the latter declared they would fight the strike bitterly.

Did Avery Assault Sapp?
John Avery, who is employed by Winter's express, was arrested on Tuesday by Sergeant Hanley on a warrant sworn out by Louis Sapp, steward of the Elks' Club, charging Avery with assault in the third degree. This morning Avery was arraigned before Recorder Lang and pleaded not guilty, and the case was adjourned until Monday afternoon.

Charles D. Devo appeared for Avery and Andrew J. Cook for Sapp. Sapp claims that Avery punched him in the face several times, and he wore a pair of eyes that proved something had hit him.

Miss Lang is a Graduate.
Miss Ruth Lang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lang, of No. 149 Hunter street, graduated Tuesday evening from the Albany Certified College of Nurses. She was a member of a class of forty-seven.

ADMIRAL DEWEY'S DEATH ENDS LONG CAREER IN NAVY

Hero of Manila Bay Was Ranking Naval Officer of World and Died in Harness—One of Best Loved and Most Famous Figures in Our History.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Jan. 17.—Admiral George Dewey, U. S. N., the hero of Manila Bay and, by priority of grade, ranking naval officer of the world, died Tuesday afternoon at 5:56 o'clock at his home in this city. At his bedside were Mrs. Dewey and his son, George Dewey, Jr. Admiral Dewey's death followed a general breakdown accompanied by arteriosclerosis, he having collapsed last Thursday morning as he was leaving his home for his office in the navy department.

A slight paralytic stroke suffered eighteen months ago is said to have been the first indication of a weakening of the vigorous constitution. It is expected that the funeral will take place Saturday with burial in the national cemetery in Arlington where many of the admiral's former comrades are buried. Flags on all naval stations were placed at half mast.

George Dewey was born in a New England farmhouse just outside the township of Montpelier, Vt., on December 26, 1837. He attended the district school, where his disposition proved adventurous. At the age of sixteen he entered the old Military Academy at Norwich, Vt.

The strict discipline and the continual study at the academy had a tendency to make the boys rebellious. On one occasion Dewey and four of his associates were arrested and ordered to appear before the court at Woodstock charged with disorderly conduct for standing outside the window of a church where hymns were being sung and breaking up the meeting by a vocal chant of "robin songs." Dewey's father heard of this and ordered his son to return home immediately.

Competitive examinations were not held at this time for the candidates to either West Point or Annapolis. It was necessary to obtain the favor of a Representative in Congress. The influence of Dewey's father secured an appointment for his son. It happened that the first vacancy occurred at Annapolis, and in the fall of 1854 Dewey took up his abode at the Naval Academy.

His career at no time in his student life showed any marked ability for study. He was good in mathematics, poor in history and geography. He was graduated on June 18, 1858, being one of the fifteen who finished out of a class of sixty.

After graduation Dewey was assigned to duty on the Wabash, a steam frigate of over four thousand tons for two years' experience in practical cruising, a requirement of the academy's curriculum before the students received their commissions. The Wabash was the flagship of the Mediterranean squadron, bearing the commission of Flag Officer E. A. F. LaValette, at that time the highest rank in the navy. It sailed from Hampton Roads July 22, 1858, arriving at Gibraltar on August 15, and cruised from port to port in the Mediterranean until November, 1859.

On December 17, 1859, the Wabash arrived home, and was docked for repairs at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Dewey then obtained a three-months' leave of absence, which he spent at his home in Vermont. Afterward he served on the Powhatan and the Pawnee in a cruise to Caribbean and Gulf ports.

The Pawnee steamed into Charleston harbor on her return trip just at the outbreak of the Civil War. Many southern officers and sailors resigned from the navy to join the Confederate forces. Dewey saw the possibility of a great conflict, and returned to the Naval Academy to take his final examinations. This was in January, 1861.

He passed through the grades of midshipman and master and was raised to the rank of lieutenant in April. After his final examination he was advanced to number three in his class and was a full-fledged naval officer.

On May 10, 1861, Dewey reported for duty on the old side-wheeler Mississippi, on board which he served until she was fired upon and burned by the batteries of Fort Hudson in March, 1863. During his service on this ship he was brought in close touch with Melancthon Smith, then commander of the Mississippi, and with David G. Farragut, flag officer of the whole squadron maneuvering off New Orleans.

The fleet consisted of the screw sloops Hartford, Pensacola, Richmond and Brooklyn; the side-wheeler Mississippi; the screw corvettes Onondaga, Veruna and Iroquois; nine new gunboats of five hundred tons each, and a mortar flotilla.

On the night of April 23 two red lights at the peak of the flagship signalled the other boats to follow her advance up the Mississippi River. It was necessary to pass under the fire of the two forts on the shore and to keep a constant watch for hidden snails, which the Confederates had put in the river to obstruct the pass.

Captain Smith of the Mississippi, had opposed trying to make the run in the night. His plan was to steam by the forts at full speed in the day.

RAIDER REPORTS DEPRESS STOCKS

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Jan. 17.—Nearly everything in which there was active trading sold at substantial concessions at the opening of the stock exchange today. This movement was based wholly on the Rio Janeiro dispatches, telling about the activities of the German raider. Steel Common opened with sales of 15,000 shares at 113 3/4 and 114, against 415 at the close yesterday and then rallied to 114 1/2. The Marine shares were offered down at the start, the preferred selling at 84, followed by a rally to 85. Industrial Alcohol declined 2 1/2 to 127, but quickly recovered to 128 1/2. Utah Copper declined 3/4 to 167 1/2, and then rose to 168 3/4. Reading declined 3/4 to 102 1/2, but soon recovered this loss. Union Pacific sold down from 145 to 144 1/2, and then rallying to 145.

At a monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Bureau of Social Service, the secretary gave the following report for the month of December, 1916:

Besides the work done by the bureau during the holidays which was previously reported during the month of December, the bureau either investigated, supervised or assisted 62 families; 47 were old cases, 15 new and 2 recurrent. This work has been done with the co-operation of the usual number of agencies. 22 days' work has been obtained for men and women and two permanent positions. Three investigations have been made for out of town organizations. One for the Charity Organization Society of Bridgeport, Conn.; one for the Charity Organization in Poughkeepsie; and a third for the Newburgh Associated Charities. Medical treatment has been secured for several persons during the month at the Kingston City Hospital. 136 days' care have been given to the children at the Day Nursery. At the time of the clinic for the after care of the children who were afflicted with infantile paralysis recently, the bureau supplied the lunch for the children. The bureau is also co-operating with the mental hygiene clinic, which is now being held at the county laboratory on John street.

A painter on the West Shore railroad had the misfortune to fall from a scaffolding at Haverstraw and so seriously injured his back that there was fear he was permanently paralyzed. He was taken to the Kingston City Hospital and was unable to look after his interests as an injured employee. His condition was reported to the Bureau of Social Service by friends. After thorough investigation and advice of the officers of the bureau, the subject of securing compensation for this man from the railroad company was taken up. After considerable negotiation this man's claim was settled by the company for $3,000, which sum the bureau was able to secure without having it diminished by a dollar for expense, thus enabling his wife and three children from becoming objects of charity. This particular incident shows the great effectiveness of the bureau in combating misfortune, poverty and distress.

The articles of clothing, which were made by the Second Year High School Sewing Class, were especially appreciated by the bureau. When a mother is obliged to work five or six days in the week she has very little time to make clothing for the children of the family.

The following names were omitted from the list of givers at the holiday time: Mrs. S. Carson, Mrs. David Edel and the Second Year High School Sewing Class.

All articles of clothing, especially warm beddins, will be gratefully received by the secretary of the bureau, Mrs. Laura Mac Millan, 27 East O'Reilly street. Tel. 1-1-5.

Lack of Water on High Points.
Householders Allow Faucets to Run During Day Causing Shortage of Water on High Points of City.

Owing to the fact that many residents allow their water faucets to run full force during the day there is a lack of sufficient water pressure on the high points of the city in case a fire should break out. The faucets are left running to prevent freezing. This is all right during the night, but it is said that it is not necessary during the day. Water being constantly drawn during the hours of the day makes it less likely for the pipes to freeze. It is likely that the water board will take action in the matter if householders persist in allowing the faucets to remain open during the day. It is said that the other day there was no water at the Benedictine Sanitarium and due to the fact of people letting the water run during the day.

HELPFUL HINTS ON BUYING POTATOES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—The following suggestions to housewives by home economics specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture are made in regard to the selection of potatoes for table use:

In purchasing potatoes for table purposes, the following points should be kept in mind: First, that smooth potatoes are more desirable than rough ones, because they are more easily prepared, and less loss is involved in the paring. Second, that tubers which have been exposed to light for any considerable period soon acquire a more or less acid taste; for this reason, newly harvested potatoes, if mature, are preferable for the winter's supply to those which have been kept for any considerable period under unsuitable conditions. Third, that very large potatoes are not especially desirable, partly on account of the greater length of time required to cook them uniformly, and partly because they are often very variable in texture. Fourth, a good potato should be firm and crisp when cut, and a thin cross section when held between the eye and the light should show a relatively uniform distribution of starch throughout its whole area, as opposed to a large, translucent, watery, central area which denotes a lack of starch in this portion of the tuber. The even distribution of starch insures greater uniformity in cooking and in texture of the flesh when cooked.

If a lot is not uniform, it is often worth while to sort them and use the large ones with roast meats, or at other times when the oven need not be completely heated and save the small ones for occasions when quick cooking is more convenient. When the potatoes are very large, or time is pressing, it is often desirable to increase the surface exposed to the heat by cutting them in pieces before cooking, in spite of the fact that this slightly increases the amount of nutrients lost. If they are pared and cut into small cubes or thin slices, they will cook very quickly and may then be creamed, mashed, or served in other ways.

GRANGE WATCHING ALL LEGISLATION

The regular meeting of Lake Katrine Grange was held on Monday, January 15th. An unusual amount of important business was disposed of, action being taken on resolutions referring to the new vagrant dog laws, the hunting and trespassing law, the law in regard to destruction of property by deer and the new military training law in the public schools. Vigorous measures will be taken at the coming State Grange meeting at Oneonta in February and these resolutions will be presented in support of a determined effort to secure legislation to assist the farmer in raising sheep in this state, a thing impossible at present on account of the number of vagrant mongrel curs that roam at will over the farms, and that at present cannot be exterminated. It also appears likely that strong opposition will be offered the military training scheme in the schools, the farmers, while being devoted to patriotism, feeling that this is the wrong way to keep us out of difficulties such as our European neighbors have got themselves into through the very thing now being imposed on us.

The literary hour was occupied by statements from the various committees under which this Grange intends to work this year. Some idea of the thoroughness with which they are working may be gleaned from the following from the committee on legislation:

This committee will keep posted on all legislation that may in any way affect the farmer, by arranging for our senator and representative to forward copies of any measure coming before the legislature. As they will have all resolutions introduced in the Grange referred to them, it is highly important that each member of this committee should have a broad general knowledge of economics, at least to the extent of being able to distinguish between thine, mine and ours, otherwise it is impossible that any intelligent action can be taken on many bills that will be presented. It is also essential they devote some study to the question of government, so that the principles of this important public function may be ever ready to assist them in arriving at a just decision on any matter coming before them.

The chairman of this committee is Senator Walton, the other members being Assemblyman Joel Brink and James Gaddis.

SOUTH RONDOUT.

South Rondout, Jan. 17.—Our pastor preached two able sermons on Sunday. The morning theme, "Sons of God," John 1, 11-12: The right means privilege but not compulsion; we are free to refuse the privilege to our eternal loss but if we avail ourselves by receiving Jesus as master we take the privilege then by obedience in the Father's family with all that implies. Evening theme, "Sent to Call," Luke 14:17: How can we be good servants and not feel a privilege as well as duty to invite people to the heart of love which has so benefited us.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Terpening of Sleightsburch spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Knud Olsen.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Home Economics stands for that simplicity in material surroundings which will free the spirit for the more important and permanent interests of the home and society.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

For reasons of economy the average family is substituting more milk and cheese in the family diet.

Pittsburgh Potatoes.—Cook a quart of potato cubes with a small minced onion until the potatoes begin to get tender, then add a half a can of red peppers (sweet Spanish peppers), cut in small pieces and cook five minutes longer. Drain and put into a baking dish. In a saucepan put two tablespoonsful of butter and when bubbling hot add two tablespoonsful of flour, a teaspoonful of salt and a pint of milk, cook until smooth; add a half pound of grated cheese, pour over the potatoes and bake until brown in the oven.

Rice Baked With Cheese.—Cook a cupful of rice in three quarts of water with a tablespoonful of salt. Add the well-washed rice slowly to the salted water so it will not stop boiling. When tender, drain and cover the bottom of a baking dish with a layer of rice, sprinkle with grated cheese and a dash of red pepper. Add milk to half fill the dish, cover with crumbs and bake until the milk is absorbed and the crumbs are brown.

Dip potatoes in cornmeal, before French frying them and have a pleasant change from the ordinary fried potato.

How to Cook Jack Rabbits.—Prepare the rabbits by cutting them into serving-sized pieces, roll in seasoned flour and steam in an air-tight cooking dish for a half hour. Then add a half cupful of finely cut salt pork, and a cupful of boiling water for each rabbit. Cover tightly and put into the oven and bake in a moderate oven three or four hours.

Vienna Tomatoes.—Have in a baking pan three halves of three good-sized tomatoes and in a bowl the other halves ready to use. Make into three cakes a half pound of sausage meat; fry them brown and when done flatten them on the three halves in the pan. On top of each sausage cake place a slice of uncooked bacon and on this one the other half of the tomato. Bake in a brisk oven until brown. Then serve with a sprig of parsley in the top of each.

JUROR RYAN DRANK
BEHIND THE BARTherefore the Verdict of the Jury of Which He Was a Member is Set Aside by Justice Hasbrouck.Judge Hasbrouck has handed down a decision in the case of Abraham Rosenberg against Barner Rubin and Benjamin Namm, in which a motion recently was made before him to set aside the verdict of a jury rendered at the December trial term of the supreme court at Monticello and for a new trial.The ground of the verdict was altered preponderance of the part of one of the jurors named Ryan. Mr. Ryan conducts a hotel at Monticello and served on the jury that tried the Rosenberg-Rubin case. The case was submitted to the jury by Judge Hasbrouck, who held the trial, shortly before the noon recess of court with instructions that the jury should have lunch. After returning from the court room, the jury proceeded to the jury room and later went to Ryan's hotel for lunch. Instead of seating himself immediately with the other jurors,
Mr. Ryan relieved his bartender while the latter ate his lunch and while in the bar room took a drink for himself and also served a drink to the constable in charge of the jury. He also spoke to one of the customers.
Then he joined the other jurors and after lunch they returned to the court house where a verdict was rendered soon after court recessed for the afternoon. In opposition to an application to set aside the verdict, it was claimed that the jury agreed on a verdict immediately after coming to the jury room, and that the verdict had been reached before they went to lunch. One of the defendants and his attorney were guests at the Ryan hotel and this fact also was urged as a ground for setting aside the verdict which was for "no cause of action."Judge Hasbrouck in his memorandum states:
The motion to set aside the verdict is granted. It was on conduct on the part of Juror Ryan to drink himself or to let the constable in charge of the jury while the jury was deliberating on its verdict. Such conduct may not have resulted in an error. That, however, is not the point. The fountain of justice should be clean. One of the ways of keeping it so is to keep the door of abuse shut.People vs. Shad 58 Hun 574.
The only safe way is that jurors should not be permitted to drink spirits or liquors at all while deliberating except in case of sickness as a medicine. Because it was a mistake to permit Ryan, who entertained the defendant and his lawyer at Hotel
Ryan to sit on the jury.The result is not above the suspicion that into it entered influences which should have no part in a verdict. The ends of justice require a new trial.Verdict set aside. New trial granted.
The plaintiff and the motion,
Murray G. Jennings of New York city representing Leonidas Dennis appeared for the defendants and opposed.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 17, 1917

Expenditures for education in the United States passed the billion dollar mark last year, an achievement which aroused elation among educators, to whom that item shows a tremendous increase over our public school system. That these same educators are not blind to the many defects of such system, no matter how great its progress and promise, is shown by William Charles O'Donnell, Jr., editor of Educational Foundations, who, in a letter to the Sun, summarizes the views of leaders in the field as to its more pressing needs. Dr. David Starr Jordan thinks that physical training for the many is neglected in our schools for athletic competition of the few; Dr. Francis T. Miller says one conspicuous defect is too much pedagogy instead of sociology, economics and common sense. Another authority says the trouble lies in the attempt to do too many different things in a short period of time, a view in which several others agree in the main. Lack of thoroughness and unity and superficiality are the chief faults cited. Still others assert that incoherence, lack of organization and ignoring the needs of the individual child are pre-eminent defects. There is a sufficiency of criticism and the reader is at liberty to take any which seems to him to best fit the case. Yet the problem of public education is by far the most insistent in its demand for solution of any before the country.

An investment of more than a billion of dollars a year is one of sufficient size to deserve thoughtful consideration of the returns therefrom. It is a subject of which every man, woman and child has, or should have, a deep and continuing interest. The criticisms voiced by the renowned educators above quoted do not necessarily indicate a spirit of pessimism over the prospects for public education. Indeed, the contrary is true, for in holding the mirror up to our system, the defects are made easier to correct. The discovery of weaknesses is the signal for remedial measures. Even with the great expenditure in this cause, the fact remains that teaching has not yet gained the place in the so-called learned professions that its importance justifies, a condition due perhaps to the comparatively low wage standard prevailing. The schools are getting on. The public interest was never so keen in education as at the present time and the people themselves are being educated to a true sense of values in educational service. Just at the present time our school system is in a transitory stage, with manual training and domestic science obtaining a greater degree of recognition than heretofore. From whatever angle the schools are viewed defects may be detected. The summary by the editor mentioned, classifying the outstanding needs of educational development as more democracy, definiteness of method and purpose, and emphasis on the power to think, is both accurate and sound. To remedy these more conspicuous shortcomings in our system of public schools is a matter well worthy of the best thought and sustained energy of the leaders in the education world today.

Speaking of the high prices of paper, Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, says that there is scarcely a newspaper in the country whose profits of the past year will not be entirely consumed in the single item of the increased cost of white paper this year. This opinion is born of long experience and is supported by experts. It is reflected in the cutting down of expenses by hundreds of newspapers and in the proposed action by Congress toward the elimination of useless public documents, a field in which the Senate Committee on Printing reports that $450,000 can be saved annually without injury to the public interest. Even that formidable figure seems modest to anyone acquainted with the infinite variety and vast quantity of printed matter issued from the government printing office each year. Members of Congress would pay for embossing their own stationery under the new recommendation to use only manila envelopes for "ranked" mail, while the reduction in the bulk of the Congressional Record is estimated to make possible a saving of $100,000 annually through restricting "unanimous consent" to print irrelevant and unduly long speeches, together with the cutting out of war and special pension claims from the Record. It is all in the way of economy and is essentially proper. The Congressional Record should be a record of fact instead of in name merely. It has been made the park-house for carrying Congressional oratory for many years. Even with impending increases in paper prices, publishers can find a crumb of comfort in the fact that the famine has forced the Federal government to curtail so many publications utterly useless to the public welfare.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Hokus—"Did you make any new resolutions this year?" Pokus—"No, just the same old ones."—Lile.

"Tholly has brain trouble." "Is that of what kind?" "It troubles him to think."—Boston Transcript.

"I was held up in this city before I had been here a day." "Didn't you get a chance to cry out?" "Oh, yes, but what did the nurse care for that?"—Baltimore American.

Dolt—"Why is it that Puddfoot never seems to get any richer?" "I think it must be because he's following the rules for success laid down by multi-millionaires."—Puck.

Mr. Bacon—"How was the Sewing Society meeting?" Mrs. Bacon—"Very well attended." "Did any one speak?" "Oh, yes." "Who spoke first?" "No one. They all spoke at once."—Yonkers Statesman.

"Do you ever give tips on the stock market?" "Certainly," said Dustin Star. "By scattering tips I can sometimes start a rumor that will push a stock the way I want it to."—Washington Star.

Patron (of Mrs. Newbywed)—"What was it your husband wanted to see me about?" Mrs. Newbywed—"I think he wanted to borrow a couple of hundred dollars to get out of debt."—Boston Transcript.

Shifting the Responsibility.
Bessie had just received a bright new dime and was starting out to invest in an ice cream soda.

"Why don't you give your money to the missionaries?" asked the minister, who was calling at the house.

"I thought about that," said Bessie, "but I think I will buy the ice cream soda and let the druggist give the money to the missionaries."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Tables.
Peace being declared, Johnny was the morning man.

"Johnny, don't let his job beat him. That is not nice to say. A woman had it. I was told down as well as you. The sex distinctions are all bunk," he insisted.

Johnny didn't say anything till another war broke out. "These sex distinctions are all bunk—your king and country need you!" he thereupon admonished the woman, so confidently and persistently that the only way she could save her face was to join the colors, leaving Johnny to apply for the vacum.

It's a long cable that has no turning.—New York Post.

Realism.
It was at the movies. An old couple sat together through a picture that included many views of the wild west. In one of these a cattle "round-up" appeared, in which the dust rose in clouds from the parched ground.

The old lady began to cough, and finally, when the neighbors began to fidget, her husband nudged her with his elbow.

"Don't cough, Annie; can't you see you're disturbing the other fellow?"

His wife looked at him anxiously over her handkerchief, smothering a sob. "I can't help it, Ephraim. The dust tickles my throat."—Everybody's Magazine.

Warm Religion.
In an eastern city a pastor of a reformed Baptist church consulted a plumber and steamfitter about the cost of putting in a baptistry. The estimate was soon furnished and the figure was regarded as satisfactory.

"That," said the plumber, "covers only the tank and the water supply. Of course you will want some sort of arrangement to heat the water."

But the colored pastor had a truly "economic" mind, and his own ideas of religion also, for he promptly dissent.

"You see," he said to the plumber, "I don't low to baptize nobody in that there baptistry what hain't got religion enough to keep them warm."—Brooklyn Citizen.

ADMIRAL DEWEY'S DEATH ENDS LONG CAREER IN NAVY

the daytime and each ship fight its way as it went, thus to eliminate the danger of running around.

"I cannot see in the night," said Smith. "I am going to leave that to you, Dewey. You have younger eyes."

Dewey commanded the ship from the hurricane deck. When the torpedoes were near the opposite bank they came to a dangerous shoal. The torpedoes were located on top of the clouds, where they could direct a downward fire on the fleet, while the ships were forced to shoot upward.

The old Mississippi, on account of her side wheels and draught, was much too large a ship to ascend this part of the river. It had an experienced pilot at the wheel, but when the enemy's guns began pounding her with telling effect the pilot could see nothing save the pall of smoke and the flashes of light. He steamed slowly, feeling his way as he approached the shoal. When he thought it was passed successfully he shouted out, "Full speed ahead!" As it turned out the Mississippi sailed into the shoal full on and struck just as she had developed a powerful momentum. She ran hard aground and listed.

The Confederates trained their guns on the unfortunate frigate and made the most of her distress. Finally the ship was set on fire by the bursting shells and the crew was forced to abandon it. Captain Smith in a later report on the battle, said:

"I consider that I should be neglecting a most important duty should I omit to mention the coolness of my executive officer, George Dewey, and the steady, fearless and gallant manner in which this officer and the men under him defended the Mississippi and the orderly and quiet manner in which they abandoned her, a great deal of which was due to the discipline practiced by the men under Dewey's training."

With the taking of Vicksburg in July by the Federal army, Port Hudson fell in consequence. There was no longer any need of a naval force on the river. Dewey was ordered to report to Rear Admiral Dahlgren, who was in charge of the blockade off Charleston, S. C. The blockade was inactive and Dewey obtained a leave of absence to visit his home in Vermont.

On his return to service Dewey was placed in command of the Agawam, a fair-sized river steamer fitted with a few guns. The Agawam captured the Confederate battery at Fort Mifflin Creek and aided the Federal troops in various skirmishes along the river front. Later on Dewey was appointed executive officer on board the Colorado and took part in both her actions against Fort Fisher in 1865. A promotion made Dewey Lieutenant-Commander of the Rearguard when the war ended. After the war Dewey served on a vessel in the European squadron, and from time to time was assigned to various duties.

He was promoted to commander in April, 1872, then in his thirty-fifth year. In September, 1881, he was raised to the rank of captain and was made a commodore on February 8, 1886.

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American War in 1898, Dewey assumed command of the Asiatic squadron. The fleet lay in the harbor of Hong Kong on April 19 when it received an order to prepare for battle. The ship's painters in one day changed the snow-white garb of peace for the sombre gray of war.

On April 25 war was declared between the United States and Spain, and at the request of the Governor of Hong Kong the American fleet steamed away. On April 28 Dewey received orders to commence operations at once, particularly against the Spanish fleet, then cruising about the Philippine Islands. The American fleet headed direct for Manila.

The squadron was made up of the following vessels:
Cruisers Olympia, flagship; Boston, Concord, the Petrel, Raleigh and the Baltimore. All of these vessels were speedy, but in making the journey to the Philippines a speed of only eight knots was maintained, for the transports accompanying them could not make fast headway against the rolling sea.

During the run Dewey kept the fleet busy with gun drills and other exercises, and every minute was spent in earnest preparation for the expected conflict. Saturday morning, April 30, Luzon was sighted. Chairs, tables, chests and boxes were thrown overboard as the ships were tipped and made ready for battle.

It was learned that the Spanish fleet was in Manila Bay. On Saturday night, April 30, the very day that he arrived at the islands, Dewey proceeded through the dangerous channels of Manila Bay. The shore was dotted with forts and the waters were thick with mines. All realized the perils of this undertaking, and few there were who did not expect the ship leading the line of advance to be blown up at any moment.

The forts failed to discover the enemy, and Dewey kept straight on. The narrowest point of the inlet was passed, and still the entering fleet had not been discovered. But where was the enemy? It was fourteen minutes past 11 when a rocket was sent up by one of the forts and from the west came a flash of light and the heavy boom of a cannon. The battle was on.

Parkies hung over the bay as the gray fleet exchanged shots with the incompetent gunners of the forts. A strict lookout was kept for the Spanish torpedo boats. The speed of the American fleet was reduced to three knots and great caution was taken to avoid the death-dealing mines supposed to be so numerous in the harbor. When the morning came there, there, before the American ships and under the guns of Cavite, lay the Spanish fleet. It consisted of seven cruisers, five gun-boats and two torpedo boats. The Americans had two gunboats, four cruisers and one cutter.

The Spanish were assisted by the powerful land batteries, as well as by their knowledge of the surrounding waters. The batteries of Cavite and of the Reina Christina, Admiral Montojo's flagship, opened with their guns on the American fleet, which, however, kept on its course.

Within 6,000 yards of the Spanish fleet the word was given to fire. The battle line passed the whole length of the Spanish fleet, which had remained at anchor. The Spanish replied, but most of their shots went astray and very little damage was done to Dewey's fleet. The American line swung around and sailed past the Spaniards again, keeping up a deadly flow of shells.

While the battle was on the Reina Christina moved out of the Spanish line and headed direct for the American flagship. The Olympia hurled a torpedo of steel into the approaching vessel which riddled with shot and with great gaping holes in her side, turned and made for the shore.

Meanwhile the Raleigh had disabled two of the Spanish cruisers. The Petrel in like manner had engaged in a fight with two torpedo boats. One of these sought refuge in a small inlet, where her crew abandoned her and she was blown to pieces by the guns of the Petrel. The other torpedo boat braved the shot and shell and advanced to within 500 yards of the Olympia, threatening the flagship with its deadly torpedoes. The Petrel sent a shell into the Spaniard. An explosion took place and the little vessel went silently to the bottom.

The Baltimore entered into battle with the Castilla and left the latter a blazing wreck.

When the fighting stopped for the night commanders of the various vessels came aboard the Olympia to report to Dewey. It was learned that not a ship was disabled, not a cannon out of order, not a man killed or injured.

Many miraculous escapes were narrated, and it was remarked that but for the hand of Providence and the poor marksmanship of the Spaniards prevented serious casualties.

At daybreak the battle was renewed. Admiral Montojo had meanwhile transferred his flag to the Isla de Cuba. The Baltimore, ignorant of the change of flagship, advanced to within 2,500 yards of the Reina Christina, the former flagship. The American cruiser fired a broadside into her opponent, and when the smoke cleared away the Spaniard's bow shot high into the air and hull sank gradually beneath the waves.

The Baltimore, assisted by the Raleigh and the Olympia, sent a concentrated volley into the Jean de Austria, which met with the same fate as her sister ship, the Reina Christina. The Petrel finished the gunboat El Correo, while the Concord brought to an end the career of the General Lezo. The Boston put a few broadsides into the Velasco, which responded but feebly and finally sank. The Boston then joined the Olympia in an attack upon the Don Antonio de Ulloa. The Spanish commander, Rabion, struck down on his ship with color flying.

Another Spanish vessel gave the signal of surrender. When the McCulloch approached to take possession the Spaniard fired a broadside at the cutter. Instantly every American ship trained fire on the Spanish vessel. When the smoke finally faded away all that remained of the Spaniard was a half submerged wreck filled with dead men.

Ship after ship of the Spanish fleet was either sunk or disabled. Until Admiral Montojo, on the half-sinking Isla de Cuba, took down his colors and sought refuge on shore. On the flagstaff of the Cavite arsenal was raised a white flag, at the sight of which the American sailors cheered themselves hoarse. The battle of Manila Bay had been fought and won.

Commodore Dewey had completely annihilated the Spanish squadron without the loss of a single American life and with no men seriously wounded. None of the American ships suffered injury beyond repair. On the Spanish side the following vessels had either been burned or sunk:

Reina Christina, Castilla, Don Antonio de Ulloa, Don Juan de Austria, Isla de Luzon, Isla de Cuba, El Correo, Velasco and Isla de Mindanao. The Spaniards lost more than six hundred men.

Immediately upon receipt of the news at Washington Dewey was promoted to Rear Admiral and thanked by resolution of congress. In 1899 Dewey was made a member of the United States Philippine Commission, and on March 2 of the same year was appointed Admiral of the Navy, the highest possible rank. Later he was president of the Navy General Board.

Admiral Dewey married Miss Susie Goodwin, daughter of Governor Leche of Luzon, on October 24, 1867. She died December 22, 1872. His second wife was Mrs. Mildred (McLean) Hazen, of Washington, whom he married November 9, 1899.

By Telegraph to the Freeman.
Chicago, Jan. 17.—Thomas St. Germain, graduate of Carlisle and the Yale Law School, and former assistant coach of the Yale eleven, is in jail today because he could not solve the eternal triangle. Miss Jeanette Black, daughter of John Black, said to be a real estate man of Philadelphia, is the complainant. She demands that St. Germain contribute to the support of herself and baby.

St. Germain admits that on January 8, following a quarrel, he suddenly switched plans which he had made to marry Miss Black at Crown Point, and became the husband of Miss Jeanette Black, graduate of Rockford, a well-known social worker.

"It was a social razors which caused the trouble," said St. Germain. "Both Miss Black and Miss Jeanette were furnished by St. Germain's for Christmas. Miss Jeanette saw me shaving with the one good time is expected and a number

FORTY-FOUR HIT TRAIL TUESDAY

This Makes 337 Trail Hitters to Date at the Delaware Avenue Tabernacle—Impressive Scene as Evangelist Extends Invitation.

"Hitting the sawdust trail" has started in earnest at the Delaware Avenue Tabernacle and Tuesday evening when Evangelist L. K. Peacock extended an invitation to the trail hitters, forty-four men and women came forward and took a stand for Christ. Sunday evening 293 came forward, making a total to date of 337 who have "hit the trail." It is likely from now on that the evangelist will extend a call to all those who believe in the Lord to hit the trail.

It was an impressive sight Tuesday evening as the evangelist extended the invitation and men and women singly and in pairs left their seats and came forward and occupied seats in the front of the tabernacle. Those who are coming forward at the services are church members who are recommitting themselves to the Lord, backsliders from the church, and others anxious to consecrate their lives to their Saviour.

Y. M. C. A. Night.
It was Y. M. C. A. night at the tabernacle and a large delegation of youth met at the association building and marched in a body to the building and occupied seats that had been reserved for them.

Standing at Door.
The evangelist took his text from Revelations 3:20: "Behold I stand at the door and knock: if any man hear my voice and open the door I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me." These were the words written to the church in Laodicea and earlier in the chapter from which our text is taken we read: "I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot. So because thou art lukewarm, and neither hot nor cold, I will spew thee out of my mouth."

Not Even Lukewarm.
A great many people in the church today are neither cold nor hot in the service of God; some are not even lukewarm. Some people are very much afraid that people will receive the baptism of the Holy Spirit and go out and work for God. A lot of people are dead in the kingdom of God but they don't know they are dead. They are the people that don't care whether others go to heaven or to hell. This is not the spirit Jesus Christ wants his professed followers to manifest in the world.

The Church's Mission.
The church was organized for the sole purpose of bringing the people back to God. The church is not a club room or a lobster palace, but is a place set aside for the worship of the Lord.

Church people are supposed to be different from the saloon keepers, the riff raff and the plug uglies of the world. The church is a spiritual organization, that's why it is different from any other in the world, and way its members should be different.

The great trouble is we have thrown down the bars and said come into church and bring the world with you.

Means Something.
I believe it means something to be a Christian. If not let's burn down the churches.

If you are not going to obey God's laws, what's the use of being identified with the church?

I would rather take the worldly man's chances in the hereafter than the hypocritical church member's chance.

Remember, you can't fool God. He has your record.

Church people are very much afraid of being misunderstood by people on the outside.

If We Had More Christians.
The Christian is the one who will do anything that God's spirit prompts him or her to do, and the out and out Christian never stops to think what people will say about him. I tell you if we had more Christians than church members it would mean a greater advancement in the Lord's work.

The trouble is we have too much worldliness in our homes, in our lives and in our churches, and not enough Christlikeness.

Some Lose Christ.
Some people lose Christ in the church, in their business and in their homes. Have you lost Jesus? If you have you can always find him again.

Remember, Jesus is not going to grasp you by your neck and drag you into the Kingdom of God. He won't force you to go to heaven.

Jesus stands at the door of your heart knocking. Had you not better let him in before it is too late.

Don't Wait Too Late.
You can bar your heart to Christ. The latch is on the inside and he will not try to force the door open. It is up to you to open your heart and allow your Saviour to come in.

Are you going to do it, or are you going to wait until the hand of death is on your brow, and then it may be too late, and you'll find the gates of heaven barred to you.

Bible Class Organized.
This afternoon a Bible class was organized at the tabernacle in charge of Mr. Warth, the soloist and chorus director of the tabernacle services, and this class will meet every Wednesday and Friday afternoon at the tabernacle at 2 o'clock. All interested in the study of the Bible are invited to attend. Mr. Warth for eight years was a lawyer, and his views on the Bible will prove of interest.

Other Announcements.
Saturday afternoon a service for young folks will be held at tabernacle.

Thursday at noon another meeting for the business girls will be held at the Y. M. C. A. This will be in charge of Miss Steer.

High school girls are invited to Fathers are pleased at the absence of labor and repairs. The long-between firing periods of IDEAL Boilers make the outfit extremely easy to run, the fire kindled once at the beginning of the season burns until Spring with the use of almost any fuel—wood, oil, gas, hard or soft coal, run-of-mine, screenings or pea coal. IDEAL Boilers are scientifically built, full-tested, and will produce the greatest number of heat units per pound of fuel burned.

Mother rejoices in the uniform even heat in all rooms for the children and old folks. No ash dust or coal gases in the air, therefore less house-cleaning. The IDEAL Boiler and AMERICAN Radiators really add to her leisure time, making the house the pleasantest, most harmoniously heated place in the world, no matter how bleak Winter howls outside.

SLAYER OF WIFE AND COLONEL PUT ON TRIAL.

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 17.—Charged with the murder of his beautiful wife, Crystal Holland Spang, and of Lieutenant-Colonel Matthew C. Butler, of the Sixth Cavalry, N. S. A., Harry J. Spang went on trial here today.

Spang was the proprietor of a hotel. His wife was the daughter of a wealthy banker and ranchman, and met Spang while she was attending Baylor University. Lieutenant-Colonel Butler was married. He was stationed at Washington for a year at the War College and had a wide acquaintance in army circles.

The motive for the killing was still a mystery when the trial opened. The home life of the Spangs, seemingly, was ideal. On the evening of July 29, after a drive about the city of Alpine, the Spangs invited Colonel Butler to join them. A few minutes later Spang walked into the house and surrendered to the sheriff.

"I have killed them both," he said.

Spang stopped his car a few blocks from the hotel, the police said, and began shooting with an automatic pistol and a six-shooter. The bodies of both Mrs. Spang and Colonel Butler, who were occupying the rear seat, were riddled with bullets.

Spang was in the past week, but last of Hyde Park took place on Monday afternoon, January 15, the Rev. Miss Bridget Quinn is visiting Richard C. Spang of West Park of the marriage of Miss Alice Mason York on Monday for a two weeks.

BEAVERKILL CLUB WINS ITS SUIT

The court of appeals at Albany on Tuesday handed down a decision in the case of the Beaverkill Stream Club, respondent, against Elizabeth Leaman (formerly Leighton), doing business under the name of the Arthur Leighton Company, and Arthur Leighton, 2d, appellants, granting a motion made on behalf of the club to dismiss the appeal, and dismissing such appeal with costs and ten dollars costs of motion.

The defendants for a number of years operated an acid factory at Roscoe, N. Y., and much of the timber used there was floated down the Beaverkill stream from land which they owned bordering the head waters of the stream. The timber was usually kept until there was a freshet, when it was floated down stream. To reach Roscoe, it was necessary for the timber to pass the property of the Beaverkill Stream Club, which is a fishing club owning the land for a considerable distance on either side of the stream.

The Beaverkill Stream Club brought an action in the supreme court for an injunction to restrain the defendants from continuing the use of the stream for floating its logs to Roscoe, on the ground that the passage of the logs down stream in time of freshet was tearing away the banks of the stream where it flowed through the club's preserve, and otherwise caused damage to the club property, besides ending the fishing. The action was defended on the ground that the defendants had a right to use the stream for that purpose the same way as they would have the right to use a roadway, in order to reach their mill.

In May, 1915, the case was tried before Judge Chester, of the court of sessions in this city, and in a lengthy opinion in which he interestingly reviewed the history of the lumber industry of that section of the state Judge Chester granted the injunction, holding that the use of the Beaverkill stream was not similar to the use of a highway, or to the use of a navigable stream. The defendants appealed to the appellate division which unanimously affirmed the judgment of Judge Chester, without opinion. From the judgment of that court the defendants appealed to the court of appeals. After the appeal was taken, a special master of New York city, who had conducted the case for the defendants, died, and a Delaware county attorney was substituted.

Recently the Beaverkill Stream Club moved to dismiss the appeal on the ground that the case was not appealable, and that motion has now been granted. David Taylor & Davis of New York city, represented the Beaverkill Stream Club with Frederick E. W. Barrow of this city, of counsel.

REAL COOKING AND SEWING WELL TAUGHT

With the introduction of cooking and sewing into the public school systems of the country a few years ago, there grew up the notion in many communities that the teaching of these branches was only another "fad" of our modern educators, and in some instances the notion may have been justified. Right here at home, the question has been asked frequently whether or not our girls have entered the domestic science, otherwise cooking classes, or the domestic arts, otherwise sewing classes, were really doing things. Tuesday evening the mothers of the students now in these classes had a chance to see for themselves that real cooking and real sewing is being taught at the high school. The kitchen was the center of attraction for many of the mothers, there being twenty-four girls in the regular cooking classes and ten in the lunch room class. Last evening the girls made, for inspection, baking powder biscuits, peach short cake, chocolate bread pudding, pop overs, salads of various kinds and coffee, while the lunch room girls made a specialty of lemon meringue pie. The work was done entirely by the girls, and when the cooking was completed the mothers were permitted to sample the results.

The comments from the older women were exceedingly complimentary both as to the manner in which the work was done, and the economy exhibited in the materials used. Moreover all the cookery demonstrated was practical and the processes of preparation were practical. Then, too, the women visitors were much interested in the charts shown about the room relative to meat cuts, etc., and groups of mothers could be seen chatting and discussing the modern and scientifically approved modes of cookery, with as much interest and eagerness to learn as is shown by the girls in the classes. After seeing the food prepared, and while it was being served, the mothers were escorted by members of the cooking class, not needed for the kitchen work, to the girls' lunch room, where they were served by these young ladies, in caps and aprons, with refreshments prepared by the cooking classes. The table decorations were pink and green, and this color scheme was carried out in the refreshments, lettuce sandwiches, lemonade, cakes with pink icing, and pink and green candies were served and all were delicious. So much for the cooking, or domestic science, under the capable supervision of Miss Davis.

Being in the room of the sewing class, one found another interesting group of mothers, older sisters and pupils, while Miss Holmes, the teacher in this department, was asking the girls sewing tricks, applied by themselves, to step upon the little platform to exhibit their handiwork. One girl wore a frock of dark brown cloth, made as nearly all of the gowns were, plaited one-piece dresses with waists of cloth, satin collar, and trimming of French knots in shades of gold. Another gown shown was of black and white check, trimmed with black braid, plaited, and having the side pockets. Another very modish frock was of dark blue cloth trimmed with black braid and having a white collar, this also was a plaited model, and all noticeably hung remarkably well. An empire gown of dark gray cloth with shawl collar of satin was very attractive, as was a lighter frock of figured challis made with ruffled skirt and collar. There was another dark blue dress with white collar which was very effective as well as one of gold brocade cloth with trimming of embroidery in gold and red silk. Still another costume was of old blue cloth with satin collar, not only had the girls made these costumes entirely, but they had drafted their own patterns, and it was noticeable that they were made of a fabric suitable to the season rather than of some flimsy summer material. In addition to this exhibit of completed and worn frocks, there were to be seen finished skirts, petticoats, waists, night robes, etc.

all showing most creditable needlework and general making. Then too, the pupils in the sewing classes, numbering between forty and fifty, find time to sew upon towels, sheets, night-drawers and aprons or the industrial home, the home furnishing the material. There could be no doubt in the mind of any mother present at the high school last night that the girls are taught real cooking and sewing.

THE LATE COL. THURSTON.

National Guard Officer Well-Known in This City.

Colonel Nathaniel B. Thurston, who had been actively associated with the National Guard of New York state for forty years, died of apoplexy Tuesday at his quarters in the New York military camp at McAllen, Texas, in his sixty-first year.

Colonel Thurston was well known in Kingston, where he had frequently visited, and to National Guardsmen throughout the state he was fondly known as "Peggy" Thurston. He was born in New York city and joined the National Guard in 1877, when he enlisted in the Twenty-second Infantry, serving through all the grades up to lieutenant-colonel. For a number of years he was Inspector of Small Arms Practice and when the state camp was established at Peekskill he was assigned there. During the Spanish-American war he was stationed at Fort Slocum. Afterward he was in command of the Thirtieth Coast Defense Regiment, from whose command he was relieved in 1915 to join the staff of Major General John F. O'Rourke as Chief Ordnance Officer. When the guard was ordered to the Texas border last June, he was placed in command of the Twenty-fourth Regiment. He was ill last September and went on sick leave for two months but after completing his convalescence he intended on returning to the border.

During the administration of Seth Low as mayor of New York, Colonel Thurston was appointed First Deputy Police Commissioner, succeeding "Bill" Dwyer, but at the end of ten months he resigned because he was tired, he said, of being made the "goat." In 1915 Fire Commissioner Adamson appointed him an honorary chief of Battalion. While in New York he was said never to have missed a two-alarm fire. He was a member of several patriotic societies. His wife survives him. More than five thousand New York Guardsmen marched through a Garden City as escort to Mr. Thurston when they were removed from his quarters Tuesday afternoon to the train which is conveying the body of New York.

But They Save the Country. It costs Holland about $2,000,000 a year to maintain its dykes.

O. & W. Into New York City?

Many real estate men and representatives of influential financial interests are of the opinion that the recent purchase of the Billings estate by John D. Rockefeller was made with the purpose of affording entrance into the city of New York of the New York, Ontario & Western Railroad. That, it is said, would be accomplished by the construction of an inter-state bridge from New Jersey to the Billings tract, to which high point of land the bridge would be anchored on the New York side.

Housewives' New Branch.

Newburgh women have organized a branch of the Housewives' League of America with Mrs. W. Hasbrouck Snyder as president as president. After a canvass for members the branch will agitate the subject of a public market.

STRIKE PREVENTION BILL IS DEAD

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Jan. 17.—President Wilson's strike prevention proposal is dead. There will be no attempt at resurrection. This was made plain today by administration leaders in congress following the senate interstate commerce committee's adverse vote on the measure designed to make strikes unlawful pending government investigation.

The committee was practically agreed today to report a bill, put forward by the progressive Republicans providing merely for government investigation of labor disputes, but carrying no prohibition against strikes or lockouts.

An impartial investigation, it is argued, will enable the government to lay before the public the facts of the controversy and result in public sentiment supporting the side winning popular approval. Friends of this proposal believe it can be passed by congress without serious objection.

The committee was also awaiting a report from Postmaster General Burleson as to what measures may be necessary to remove possible obstructions to the transmission of mails in the event of a general railroad strike. Action in this connection will be suspended by the committee until the report is received.

Just what steps may be taken with regard to authorizing the government to take over the railroads in national emergencies will be determined when the committee receives the war department's ruling on the power of the government over the railroads in case of military necessity.

KNICKERBOCKER TO CUT ICE THURSDAY

Will Start Operations on Rondout Creek at Wilbur—Esopus Harvest Will be Begun Friday—Ice Eleven Inches Thick of Good Quality.

While the ice harvest has been under way for some time on small lakes and ponds all through the Hudson Valley, there has been no cutting on the Hudson to any extent. On Friday the Knickerbocker Ice Company expects to start operations at Esopus where 11 inch of good quality will be cut for the Esopus house. On Thursday cutting will begin on the Rondout Creek at Wilbur where the ice is about 11 inches thick. Dan Zoller also expects to begin cutting Thursday.

Ice on the river, is from five to eight inches thick in the middle with thicker ice inshore and in the coves. Some ice boats were out Tuesday but so far skaters have not ventured out until the ice gets a bit thicker.

Laborers employed in the ice harvest will get $2.50 a day which is an advance of 25 cents over the scale of last year, for the usual ten hours ice men do not anticipate much difficulty in getting help. In Dutchess county considerable ice has been cut in the lakes. The men on these jobs get $2 a day.

The Middletown Auto Club is to give a smoker and entertainment at Mitchell Inn Friday evening, January 26, at which time Judge Cunningham of Ellenville and Herbert Baker, secretary of the New York State Auto Club, will be present.

The store of the Universal Tire and Rubber Company on Fair street near the corner of John street, which was to have opened on January 15 for business, will not open yet for a few days as a large quantity of goods, which has been ordered has failed to arrive. Some goods which were shipped and should have arrived in ten days or two weeks were a month on the road. Several thousand dollars worth of accessories and tires have been shipped by the manufacturers but have not yet arrived. The store will be open as soon as the goods arrive.

GUARD COURT-MARTIAL.

Punishment in Second Artillery to be Investigated.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Jan. 17.—The extent National Guard officers may go to in punishing offenders will be determined by a court martial when Lieutenant Frank Spencer of the Second New York Field Artillery is tried by the military court for punishing five privates by ordering them "spread-eagled." Captain Wilbur T. Wright of the same regiment will also face trial.

The formal order for the court-martial was issued today by Major Leonard Wood of the department of the east after an investigation into the punishment meted out to the New York Guardsmen when they refused to obey orders to leave the outposts under the articles of war which provide that officers may be charged with "prejudicial" to good order and military discipline.

The five privates punished were also ordered court-martialed.

A night crew of 200 miners were lifted from the mines before the hoisting machinery and elevators were affected by the fire.

New York, Jan. 17.—The major leagues will open their season on Wednesday, April 11. A complete list of openings was not given out today but it is said the Giants will open here with the Boston Braves and the Yankees will open in Washington, while Wilbert Robinson's Dodgers are being entertained in Philadelphia.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 17.—Richie Mitchell of Milwaukee would be light-weight champion of the world today if there had been a referee's decision on points at the end of his ten-point bout with Freddie Welsh here last night. Mitchell outpointed the titleholder in every one of the sessions and was the victor by a wide margin. Welsh appeared entirely out of condition and so poor was his showing that at the end of the fifth round word was sent him from the boxing commission that unless he showed a disposition to do a little fighting the bout would be stopped.

New York, Jan. 17.—The owners will know there is a ball players strike on February 20 unless they "come through" with the legislation demanded by the fraternity. This is the sum and substance of a statement made today by Dave Fultz, president of the players organization. The Chicago Cubs have been instructed to report in Chicago on that date for the long training trip to the coast and Fultz declares eighteen members of the Cubs will not budge unless the fraternity is satisfied.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"What are you trying to do anyway?" queried the friend as he stopped to watch the street corner politician who stood in front of his front porch fumbling with a hammer and some nails.

"Nothing much," replied the politician as he wiped his forehead with his handkerchief, "only I am trying to put my house number on the steps so any one can see it from the street."

"What's the idea?" asked the friend.

"Why, last night when I was sound asleep in bed the old door bell rang and when I answered it a stranger wanted to know if this was number 30 and so," replied the politician.

"I made up my mind then that I would put the number of the house on the front steps where one could see it without getting me up out of bed again," continued the politician.

"That's not so bad an idea at that," said the friend.

The politician paused a minute from his labors and spoke earnestly: "I am thinking seriously of starting a crusade and getting the city fathers to help out by making it compulsory for all householders to place the house number in a conspicuous place on the front porch so that it can be plainly seen from the street."

"I guess I'll go home and change my number so it can be seen," said the friend.

"You will find it a good idea," agreed the politician. "I know that many times I have chased up and down a street looking for a certain number and it was hid away so I could not find it and I had to bother other people asking where such and such a number was. Now, if the number was tacked on the steps I would not have had to ring a lot of door bells until I found the number I was seeking."

"I have been up against the same thing myself," said the friend.

"The greatest trouble is in winter time when the storm house is placed on the front porch," continued the politician, "and it hides completely the number that is usually placed over the front door of the house."

"Do you think the common council would consider passing an ordinance to that effect?" asked the friend.

"Well, they might better pass an ordinance like that than some of the ordinances they have passed," said the politician.

After a pause in the conversation, while the politician tacked the last number in place, the friend said: "I was reading in the paper that the other day the police in Brooklyn got busy and rounded up a number of people who were caught expectorating on the sidewalk."

"Yes," said the politician in an interested voice.

"Yep, and they were taken before a judge and all of them were fined $10 to $25 each," continued the friend.

"We have the same kind of an ordinance in Kingston," remarked the politician.

"They have never enforced it though," said the friend.

"The only trouble is that the police as well as the private citizens spit on the sidewalk," said the politician, "and you can't expect a policeman to place himself under arrest, can you?"

"Nope," returned the friend.

"Well, I see that a gang of men are busy tearing up the shale brick on the Strand," said the friend.

"Sure," replied the politician, "and did you know that the New York Telephone Company was given permission by the board of public works to go ahead and do it?"

"I don't remember seeing it," replied the friend.

"Well, it was in our favorite paper anyway," retorted the politician.

"What's the idea of them tearing it up?" queried the friend.

"Why, the way I understand it," replied the politician, "the telephone company are installing a big cable and needed to have the manholes in the street enlarged, which made it necessary to tear up the pavement."

"Seems to me someone is always tearing up the pavement ever since it was laid," said the friend.

"I agree with you," replied the politician, "between the gas company, the plumbers and the telephone company, the shale brick has certainly been on the move."

"How can it be overcome?" asked the friend.

"Now you are asking me a question which I have not given any study to," answered the politician.

"But the brick can be laid back again after it has been torn up, of course," argued the friend.

"Sure it can be laid back," replied the politician, "but never as good as it was before it was taken up."

"I don't agree with you," said the friend.

"You don't have to," replied the politician, "just examine a section of the brick pavement that has been relaid."

RESULTS OF RECENT BASKETBALL GAMES

In a rattling good game of basketball the Junior class of the high school was smothered by a team of Freshmen and Sophomores Tuesday afternoon in the school gym before a good sized attendance, the score being 28 to 18, a really substantial amount for a feminine match.

Scouts for the varsity girls' team in their hunt last fall for candidates must have overlooked Miss Leona Christiana, a Freshman, whose accurate aim combined with the careless guarding of her opponents resulted in a total of twenty points and victory for the under-class girls. Once her hands were smuggled under the ball she would dodge her guard with a quick movement and then hook up two more points for her class.

Only forwards could shoot, according to the girls' rules, which were abided by, but this restriction did not seem to slacken the playing very much as the guards and centers did good work. The game was divided into four quarters.

In the first half the juniors were dazed by the unexpected showing of their antagonists and while they were gripping close a total of five points at its close the other side were in possession of 14. Pride pricked them hard in the next and, they rallied, Mary Hutchins having found her eye. In rapid fire style she hung up a total of thirteen points, the winners being content with twelve. Miss Seigle, an referee, called eight fouls on the Sophs and Freshies and five on the Juniors. The line-up follows:

SHRINERS' DANCE THIS EVENING

Everything is in readiness for the annual ball of the Kingston Shriners' Association at the armory this evening. In order to go through their difficult drills the members of Arab Patrol of Albany will go through their evolutions this afternoon at the armory. No one will be admitted to the building during the drill, and in order to witness this wonderful corps of men it will be necessary to attend the dance this evening. The Kingston brothers consider themselves lucky in securing the Patrol for this evening as it is not customary for the crack Albany corps to come to small cities unless it be to drill before some large body or convention.

Beside the drill by Arab Patrol Kingstonsians will be given an opportunity to hear the famous Marimba band which is playing at the Biltmore Hotel in New York city. This is the first time the band has appeared outside the large cities and in connection with Maiseholder's orchestra the music will be especially fine. From 8 o'clock until 8:45 the two orchestras will give a musical program alternating in their selections. Following the musical program the Arab Patrol will give their drill and at 9:30 general dancing will begin.

There are still a number of tickets for sale and for the benefit of those who have not already secured their tickets the box office at the armory will be open where tickets may be secured.

By securing the crack Albany Patrol and the famous New York Marimba band the Shriners have endeavored to not only make the affair of interest to the dancers but also to those who do not dance and with the seats in the balcony and the chairs placed in the hall downstairs there will be plenty of seating space for those who desire to look on and enjoy the music and gay spectacle of the dancers upon the floor.

Special trolley cars will be run to both ends of the city after twelve o'clock in order to give those who attend a few minutes more to enjoy the music and dance. The last cars will leave the armory at 12:50 for both uptown and downtown.

Although the Shriners have always endeavored to give the banner affair of the year this year's dance will even outdo their former attempts.

Spellman Wins Suit.

Tuesday afternoon in city court the action brought by the New York Central Railroad Company against Richard T. Spellman was tried before Acting City Judge Lang and a jury. The action was brought to recover $13.76, a balance on a freight charge on cattle shipped by Mr. Spellman from Saugerties to New York city in 1913, under the provision of the interstate commerce law. After hearing the evidence in the case the jury brought in a verdict of no cause of action. Andrew J. Cook represented Spellman while Amos Van Elten appeared for the railroad company.

What kind of a cigarette would YOU call sensible?

Check up and see how nearly this comes to fitting in with your own ideas:—

A SENSIBLE cigarette must taste good. It must be cool and smooth to your throat and tongue. It must be properly mild—mild enough so that you'll feel all right even though you may smoke more than usual.

In short, it must be comfortable. If it isn't, it can't be sensible.

Fatimas are comfortable because of the balance of their Turkish blend. The milder tobaccos in this blend are in such perfect balance with the richer, fuller-flavored leaves as to entirely off-set that uncomfortable, "oily heaviness" found in so many other cigarettes.

You'll notice the difference as soon as you try Fatimas.
